April 1982

FOREWORD

This report has been prepared as part of an on-going study of the structure of the dairy industry in New York State. The information in this report is based in large part on an earlier publication, "Number of Milk Plants Opened, Closed and Operating in New York State, 1960-1980". The information for 1981 is based on Division records.

Changes in the number of milk plants provide a revealing picture of the dramatic changes that have occurred in the dairy industry during the last two decades. The first section of this report contains four tables that summarize some of these changes. Table 1 summarizes the changes in the total number of milk plants that operated, the number that closed and the number that opened during each year. Table 2 lists the number of plants that closed during each year on a county by county basis. The third table provides a summary of the total number of plants that closed during the entire twenty-two year period by county. The fourth table summarizes the number of plants closed on a district basis.

Section Two lists all of the plants that closed from 1960 to 1981. This information is organized on a district basis. A map of New York State that is divided into districts appears on page 8. It should be noted that the type of plant designation was based on the type of operation at the time the plant closed. It should also be pointed out that, over the years, plants that were referred to as "country receiving" stations have more recently become known as "transfer" stations.

This report was compiled under the supervision of Edward J. Johnston, Jr. Several individuals assisted in researching the records of plants closing and plants opening that provided the basis for the earlier report "Number of Milk Plants Opened, Closed and Operating in New York State, 1960-1980". Their work, and the work of others more recently, is gratefully acknowledged. This report was typed by Ms. Millie Alessi.
